SANE Act to Cut Bloated Nuclear Weapons Budget

Congressman Edward J. Markey has introduced legislation that would cut $100 billion over the next ten years from America's bloated nuclear weapons budget. At present the Smarter Approach to Nuclear Expenditures (SANE) Act of 2012 (H.R.3974) has 39 co-sponsors in the House.

“It is insane that Republicans are proposing to block the automatic defense cuts mandated by the debt deal while America's nuclear weapons budget teems with billions in wasteful spending,” said Rep. Markey, senior member of the House Energy and Commerce Committee and founder of the Nonproliferation Task Force.

“It is insane to spend hundreds of billions on new nuclear bombs and delivery systems to fight a long-past Cold War while ignoring our 21st century security needs and seeking to cut Medicare, Medicaid and social programs that millions of Americans depend on.”

Specifically, SANE Act of 2012 will:

- Cut the current fleet of nuclear submarines from 12 operational at sea to eight operational at sea ($3 billion savings)
- Delay the purchase of new nuclear submarines ($17 billion savings)
- Reduce the number of ICBMs ($6 billion savings)
- End the nuclear missions of air bombers (up to $17 billion savings)
- Delay new bomber program ($18 billion savings)
- Cancel new, wasteful nuclear weapons facilities ($15 billion savings)

Call Congressman Paul Tonko, (518) 465-0700, and urge him to become a co-sponsor of the SANE Act H.R. 3974.
