

Vigil for Peace

The Biggest Waste of Tax Dollars is the Pentagon Budget

Since the demise of the Soviet Union twenty years ago, the United States has no significant military adversaries. The only countries or groups that express hostility towards the United have small military capabilities.

In the current fiscal year (FY2012), the government estimates that $716.3 billion will be spent on the military. The U.S. spends more on the military than the 15 next highest spending countries combined and vastly more than any possible enemies: roughly 6 times more than China, 12 times more than Russia, and 98 times more than Iran.

The wars we are fighting have been initiated by our own government. They have not gone well and they have not made the U.S. more secure.

Defending the United States doesn't require over 1,000 overseas bases. A much smaller military, that isn't spread across the globe getting drawn into unnecessary wars, will make us safer for less money.

Let's cut the ever-growing military budget.
