

Time to Exit Afghanistan

The recent widespread demonstrations across Afghanistan calling on the United States to leave the country after the U.S. Koran burning underline the reality that the Pentagon is not going to be able to “win” the war.

If another country invaded the United States overthrowing our government and occupied the country for ten years, a very significant portion of our population would hate the invaders.

This is what happened in Afghanistan. Throughout the past ten years the Taliban groups fighting the U.S. have had the support of a significant portion of the population. Despite U.S. efforts that support continues to grow.

Now it is clear that even members of the Karzai government and many members of Afghan army and police that U.S. soldiers have been training also hate being occupied by the United States. The situation has become untenable for the United States.

Call Senator Gillibrand, (518) 431-0120 and Senator Schumer (518) 431-4070 and ask them to speed up the U.S. withdrawal from Afghanistan.
